

Nurzalikha binti Sa'adi

Nurzalikha binti Sa'adi received her Diploma in Building in year 2012 from University Technology MARA (Kota Samarahan Campus), Bachelor of Science in Construction Management in year 2014 and Master of Science (Built Environment) from University of Technology MARA, Shah Alam in year 2016. Currently, she is the lecturer of Centre of University Courses and Innovative Learning in University College of Technology Sarawak since 1 September 2016 until present. Her area of specialization are Construction Management, Green Technology and Sustainable Development with particular interest in building construction, renewable energy, waste management and green construction.

She is also currently appointed as Research Associate for Research Centre for Borneo Regionalism and Conservation (BORC). She teaches the subjects; Green Technology, Creativity and Innovation and Malaysian Economy. Nurzalikha has to date published some of her articles in referred international journals including those indexed in Scopus database such as Journal of Sustainability Science and Management, Jurnal Teknologi and Malaysian Construction Research Journal. She is also active in joining national and international conferences by presenting her research papers. Lastly, she has also been actively involved in sport such as netball by joining Masiswa Networking Games in year 2019.